

Figure 8.1 Patterns of participation in liberal democracies

Most people are political spectators, keeping an eye on political developments but only participating directly through voting. The apathetics, who disregard formal politics altogether, outnumber the gladiators who fight the political battle.

