A Site License provides access to all content published within the specific journal during the supply period. Access is granted to a further rolling four-year archive where available during the supply period only. Archive content not included in the license agreement is available to purchase.

Site License access to Palgrave Macmillan Online Resources provides users with:

- 24/7 access to members of subscribing institutions, outside library opening hours, on the move, at home or at their desk.
- COUNTER-compliant usage reports – consistent, credible and compatible usage reports are provided for all Palgrave Macmillan online products, conforming to the international code of practice.
- Dynamic customer services – online help pages for support and trained support staff contactable by telephone or email.
- PALGRAVE MACMILLAN JOURNALS ONLINE

Additionally, online access to Palgrave Macmillan Journals (www.palgrave-journals.com) provides users with:

- Fully searchable content across the Palgrave Macmillan portfolio. Access full text HTML or PDF articles with a site license or as a single article purchase.
- Archives – we have already invested in significant digitization of back archives, which can be purchased separately. See individual titles for details.
- Advance Online Publication (AOP) – the latest research papers published online ahead of print publication, for selected titles.
- We now offer an enhanced search function – faster and more precise – made possible by our adoption of Mark Logic Server as our xml repository.
- Content listed in CrossRef Search – Palgrave Macmillan’s involvement in CrossRef Search provides researchers with the ability to find the highest quality research across multiple publishers faster and more effectively.
- Archives – for complete peace of mind, our ebook and journal content is preserved in the Portico repository.
- Post-cancellation rights – Journals and Palgrave Connect site license customers can retain access to licensed content, subject to payment of an annual access fee, should an agreement be cancelled.
- See individual titles for further details of online functionality, including citation tools, linking, personalization and federated search capabilities.
- Reference linking within and beyond Palgrave Macmillan – article references link to full-text repositories and full abstracting services such as ISI Web of Science, and Medline (PubMed) for further reading.

ATHENS and Shibboleth authentication compliance – secure remote access. Users can log in directly from palgrave-journals.com or through their Shibboleth or MyAthens account.

An array of advanced functionality at the article level including:
- linking via CrossRef to citing articles;
- ‘More articles like this’ feature: highlighting related articles;
- supplementary information: datasets, animation and video;
- ‘Export citation’: a valuable service enabling users to download key information into personal bibliographic databases.

Palgrave Open - Authors can choose to pay an Article Processing Charge (APC) in order for their article to be made available to non-subscribers.
Palgrave Macmillan offers authors and their funders the option to publish open access research across all publication formats: journals, monographs, and Palgrave Pivots (mid form monographs) via Palgrave Open. We were one of the first publishers to offer an open access option for the humanities and social sciences, and remain an active participant in the development of sustainable models for open access for these disciplines.

PALGRAVE OFFERS AUTHORS:

- Rigorous and professional standards. All works published open access are delivered to the same high standards as all Palgrave Macmillan publications. They undergo the same rigorous peer-review process, copyediting and proofreading services as all our titles.

- Broad dissemination - All open access content at Palgrave Macmillan is published under the terms of the Creative Commons Attribution (CC BY) as default to support maximum dissemination and use (other licenses are available). Preferred by many research funding bodies, this license allows readers to alter, transform, or build upon the article and then distribute the resulting work as long as the original work is correctly cited. Other licenses are available on request.

- Increased usage: evidence supports the assertion that open access publications receive more downloads, clicks and greater usage, and may lead to more citations of scholarly work.

COPYRIGHT AND LICENSING INFORMATION:

Palgrave Open publishes OA content under the terms of the Creative Commons Attribution (CC BY) License to support maximum dissemination and use. Preferred by many research funding bodies, this license enables readers to alter, transform, or build upon the article and then distribute the resulting work as long as the original work is correctly cited. The CC BY license complies with a range of open access policies and allows authors to meet the public access requirements of major funding bodies and institutions worldwide. Currently, Palgrave Macmillan is the only commercial publisher to offer this license across 3 publication formats: journal articles, mid-form (Palgrave Pivot) and long-form (monographs) research.

PALGRAVE OPEN AND LIBRARIES:

Open access ebooks will be available via Palgrave Connect, Palgrave Macmillan’s ebooks platform. Libraries will not be charged for these titles. Customers purchasing ebooks on Palgrave Connect as Collections should be assured that they will not be charged for any open access titles.

Libraries are welcome to use Palgrave Connect MARC records for open access titles to make these ebook discoverable from their catalogue.

Aims and Scope:

Acta Politica publishes outstanding work reflecting research and developments of both a theoretical and empirical nature, including comparative politics, international relations, political theory, public administration and political communication.

Despite its broad scope, Acta Politica is very selective about the quality of the articles that it publishes. Acta Politica has always been committed to publishing articles with an ‘edge’; providing new insights or new approaches in political science. At the end of the review process, the question that is always asked is: “What did we learn from this article?”

Online Features:

• Online archive available back to 2003.
• Advance online publication - definitive, citable version of papers (complete with DOI) available online ahead of print.
• Acta Politica is indexed and/or abstracted in: ABI/INFORM; Australian Research Council ERA Ranked Journals List; CSA Social Services Abstracts; CSA Sociological Abstracts; CSA Worldwide Political Science Abstracts; Infotrieve; International Bibliography of the Social Sciences (IBSS); International Bibliography of Periodical Literature on the Humanities and Social Sciences (IBZ); International Bibliography of Book Reviews of Scholarly Literature on the Humanities and Social Sciences (IBR); OCLC; SCOPUS; Social Sciences Citation Index®; Social SciSearch; SwetsWise.
• Acta Politica is included in Palgrave Open which offers authors of accepted papers the option to publish their articles with immediate open access upon publication. See page 55.

Aims and Scope:

From modernity’s onset, social theorists have been announcing the death of meaning, at the hands of market forces, impersonal power, scientific expertise, and the pervasive forces of rationalization and industrialization. Yet, cultural structures and processes have proved surprisingly resilient. Relatively autonomous patterns of meaning - sweeping narratives and dividing codes, redolent if elusive symbols, fervent demands for purity and cringing fears of pollution - continue to exert extraordinary effects on action and institutions. They affect structures of inequality, racism and marginality, gender and sexuality, crime and punishment, social movements, market success and citizen incorporation. New and old media project continuous symbolic reconstructions of private and public life.

As contemporary sociology registered the continuing robustness of cultural power, the new discipline of cultural sociology was born. How should these complex cultural processes be conceptualized? What are the best empirical ways to study social meaning? Even as debates rage around these field-specific theoretical and methodological questions, a broadly cultural sensibility has spread into every arena of sociological study, illuminating how struggles over meaning affect the most disparate processes of contemporary social life.

Bringing together the best of these studies and debates, the American Journal of Cultural Sociology (AJCS) publicly crystallizes the cultural turn in contemporary sociology. By providing a common forum for the many voices engaged in meaning-centered social inquiry, the AJCS will facilitate communication, sharpen contrasts, sustain clarity, and allow for periodic condensation and synthesis of different perspectives. The journal aims to provide a single space where cultural sociologists can follow the latest developments and debates within the field.

Online Features:

- Complete online archive available from 2013.
- Advance online publication - definitive, citable version of papers (complete with DOI) available online ahead of print.
- American Journal of Cultural Sociology is included in Palgrave Open which offers authors of accepted papers the option to publish their articles with immediate open access upon publication. See page 55.
Aims and Scope:

The American Journal of Psychoanalysis is an international psychoanalytic quarterly founded in 1941 by Karen Horney. The journal is an international forum for communicating a broad range of contemporary clinical and theoretical concepts of psychoanalysis and for presenting related investigations in allied fields. It is a fully peer-reviewed journal which welcomes contributions that address the interests and concerns of scholars and practitioners of psychoanalysis.

The journal publishes original papers, special issues devoted to a single topic, book reviews, film reviews, reports on the activities of the Karen Horney Psychoanalytic Center and comments.

Online Features:

- Online archive available back to 2007.
- The American Journal of Psychoanalysis is indexed and/or abstracted in: Australian Research Council ERA Ranked Journals List; EMBASE; e-psyche; Infotrieve; Medline®; MLA International Bibliography; OCLC; Platinum Periodicals; Psychological Abstracts; PsycINFO; PubMed; SCOPUS; SwetsWise; Thomson Gale.
Aims and Scope:

Asian Business & Management provides a unique perspective on business and management issues, both within Asia and between Asia and the wider world. Adopting a range of disciplinary and methodological approaches, it is critical reading for a broad global audience with an interest in this dynamic subject.

Asia’s place in the economic order has been driven by the dynamic interaction of global capital and regional and local forces. Rapid growth and swift financial downturn require rigorous scholarly attention. Asia’s socio-economic conditions are patently different from those of the West: a re-examination of functional Anglo-American approaches and the ‘Asian values model’ are called for.

Online Features:

- Complete online archive available back to 2002.
- Asian Business & Management is indexed and/or abstracted in: ABI/INFORM; Association of Business Schools’ Academic Journal Quality Guide; Australian Business Deans Council (ABDC); Australian Research Council ERA Ranked Journals List; Bibliography of Asian Studies; Career and Technical Education; EconLit; Emerald Management Reviews; Glocom Platform (Japan); Infotrieve; INSPEC (IEE); International Bibliography of Book Reviews of Scholarly Literature on the Humanities and Social Sciences (IBR); International Bibliography of Periodical Literature (IBZ); International Bibliography of Social Sciences (IBSS); OCLC; ProQuest Asian Business and Reference; SCOPUS; Social Sciences Citation Index®; Social SciSearch; SwetsWise.
- Asian Business & Management is included in Palgrave Open which gives authors of accepted papers the option to publish their articles with immediate open access upon publication. See page 55.

Aims and Scope:

BioSocieties is committed to the scholarly exploration of the social, ethical and policy implications of developments in the life sciences and biomedicine. These developments are increasing our ability to control our own biology; enabling us to create novel life forms; changing our ideas of ‘normality’ and ‘abnormality’; transforming our understanding of personal identity, family relations, ancestry and ‘race’; altering our social and personal expectations and responsibilities; reshaping global economic opportunities and inequalities; creating new global security challenges; and generating new social, ethical, legal and regulatory dilemmas.

BioSocieties provides a crucial forum where the most rigorous social research and critical analysis of these issues can intersect with the work of leading scientists, social researchers, clinicians, regulators and other stakeholders. BioSocieties defines the key intellectual issues at the science-society interface, and offers pathways to the resolution of the critical local, national and global socio-political challenges that arise from scientific and biomedical advances.

BioSocieties is published quarterly, with occasional themed issues that highlight some of the critical questions facing biotechnologies. Articles, response pieces, book reviews, and self-standing editorial pieces by social and life scientists form a regular part of the journal.

Online Features:

- Complete online archive available back to 2006.
- Advance online publication - definitive, citable version of papers (complete with DOI) available online ahead of print.
- BioSocieties is indexed and/or abstracted in: Australian Research Council ERARanked Journals List; Current Contents: Social and Behavioural Sciences; SCOPUS; Social Sciences Citation Index®.
- BioSocieties is included in Palgrave Open which offers authors of accepted papers the option to publish their articles with immediate open access upon publication. See page 55.

Aims and Scope:
British Politics offers the only forum explicitly designed to promote research in British political studies, and seeks to provide a counterweight to the growing fragmentation of this field during recent years. To this end, the journal aims to promote a more holistic understanding of British politics by encouraging a closer integration between theoretical and empirical research, between historical and contemporary analyses, and by fostering a conception of British politics as a broad and multidisciplinary field of study. This incorporates a range of sub-fields, including psephology, policy analysis, regional studies, comparative politics, institutional analysis, political theory, political economy, historical analysis, cultural studies and social policy.

Online Features:
- Complete online archive available back to 2006.
- Advance online publication - definitive, citable version of papers (complete with DOI) available online ahead of print.
- British Politics is indexed and/or abstracted in: ABI/INFORM; Australian Research Council ERA Ranked Journals List; Current Contents: Social and Behavioural Sciences; Gale; Infotrieve; International Political Worldwide Political Science Abstracts.

Aims and Scope

We live in unprecedented economic times. It’s now more crucial than ever to have access to clear, cogent analysis and insightful commentary about the economy and the economic outlook for business. Business Economics is compelling reading for all of those with a practical interest in how economics is used within business, and serves as an essential source of practical information for people who apply economics in their jobs. It fulfills this purpose by:

- Providing a leading forum for debating solutions to critical business problems and the analysis of key business issues.
- Providing best-practice models, tools and hands-on techniques from professionals in business.
- Representing an important channel for summaries of action-oriented analysis aimed at solving business problems.
- Giving insight into how to apply economics within business and how economic professionals respond to challenges in the workplace.
- Representing and interpreting current economic information and issues that are educational and useful on the job.

Online Features:

- Online archive available back to 2005.
- Business Economics is indexed and/or abstracted in: ABI/INFORM; Association of Business Schools (ABS) Academic Journal Quality Guide; Australian Business Deans Council (ABDC) Journal Quality List; Australian Research Council ERA Ranked Journals List; Business Source Elite from EBSCO; Econis (Online Catalog of the ZBW, German National Library of Economics); Econlit; Gold Periodicals; Infotrieve; Platinum Periodicals; RePEc (Research Papers in Economics); SCOPUS; SwetsWise.
Aims and Scope:

Comparative Economic Studies is devoted to the study of economic systems, those currently existing as well as systems that have existed in the past or that may exist only in theory. Economic systems consist of economic agents, institutions, incentives, information flows, culture, historical legacies and policies. Empirical, theoretical and policy papers dealing with all or some subset of these elements are within the scope of the journal’s interests. Comparative Economic Studies is particularly interested in studies that investigate how economic systems respond to crisis, to economic transition and to gradual structural change brought about by globalization or changes in demographics, technology, politics, the environment, etc. Also of special interest is the analysis of the effectiveness of policy measures in different economic systems, particularly studies of policies dealing with current challenges faced by different economic systems. We welcome both studies that are explicitly comparative as well as studies of single countries or sub-systems.

Online Features:

- Online archive available back to 1991.
- Comparative Economic Studies is indexed and/or abstracted in: ABI/INFORM; Australian Business Deans’ Council (ABDC) Journal Quality List; Australian Research Council ERA Ranked Journals List; Economic Literature Index; Infotrieve; International Bibliography of the Social Sciences (IBSS); International Bibliography of Periodical Literature on the Humanities and Social Sciences (IBZ); International Bibliography of Book Reviews of Scholarly Literature on the Humanities and Social Sciences (IBR); OCLC; Platinum Periodicals; RePEc (Research Papers in Economics); SCOPUS; SwetsWise.
- Comparative Economic Studies is included in Palgrave Open which offers authors of accepted papers the option to publish their articles with immediate open access upon publication. See page 55.
Aims and Scope:

Comparative European Politics arises out of a unique editorial partnership linking political scientists in Europe and North America. Comparative European Politics is a major international peer-reviewed journal on the comparative politics and political economy of the whole of contemporary Europe within and beyond the European Union, the processes of European integration and enlargement and the place of Europe and European states within international/global political and economic dynamics.

Spanning political science, international relations and global political economy, the journal provides an international and interdisciplinary forum for research, theory and debate.

Online Features:

• Complete online archive available back to 2003.
• Advance online publication - definitive, citable version of papers (complete with DOI) available online ahead of print.
• Comparative European Politics is indexed and/or abstracted in: ABI/INFORM; Australian Research Council ERA Ranked Journals List; CSA Worldwide Political Science Abstracts; Current Contents: Social and Behavioural Sciences; European Sources Online; Infotrieve; International Bibliography of Book Reviews of Scholarly Literature on the Humanities and Social Sciences (IBR); International Bibliography of Periodical Literature on the Humanities and Social Sciences (IBZ); International Political Science Abstracts; OCLC; SCOPUS; Social Sciences Citation Index®; Sociological Abstracts; SwetsWise.
• Comparative European Politics is included in Palgrave Open which offers authors of accepted papers the option to publish their articles with immediate open access upon publication. See page 55.

Aims and Scope:

Contemporary Political Theory publishes a challenging and eclectic mix of articles that contribute both to rethinking what political theory is and does, and to promoting lively engagements with contemporary global politics.

The journal is based in both the USA and UK and reaches out to authors and readers in Europe, Asia and Oceania. The journal seeks out the very best work from the wide array of interests that constitute ‘contemporary political theory’: from post-structuralist thought to analytical philosophy, from feminist theory to international relations theory, from philosophies of the social sciences to the cultural construction of political theory itself.

The journal also includes contributions from disciplines outside philosophy and political science, including but certainly not limited to: geography and anthropology, women’s studies and gender studies, cultural studies and economics, literary theory and film studies.

Aims and Scope:

Corporate Reputation Review was launched in 1997 and publishes four issues on corporate reputation every year. It invites original research that explores the relationships between corporate reputation and strategic positioning: corporate identity, communications, and image; branding and profiling; valuation and performance.

• Industry Surveys
• Leading-edge Thinking
• Robust Research
• Latest and Best Practice

This journal addresses the key questions of how corporate reputations impact on a company’s performance and its value; how corporate reputation can be measured; and how it can be managed. The manuscripts published in Corporate Reputation Review are subjected to double-blinded refereeing.

Online Features:

• Complete online archive available back to 1997.
• Corporate Reputation Review is indexed and/or abstracted in: ABI/INFORM and related ProQuest services; Anbar International Management Database (AIMD); Association of Business Schools’ (ABS) Academic Journal Quality Guide; Australian Business Deans’ Council (ABDC); Australian Research Council ERA Ranked Journals List; Gale; Elmar moderated listserv; Infotrieve; OCLC; PsycINFO; SCOPUS; SwetsWise.

Aims and Scope:
The European Journal of Development Research is a peer-reviewed academic journal that seeks to address the problems of development, whether from a political, sociological, anthropological or economic perspective. The EJDR is deliberately interdisciplinary in nature and is especially interested in papers that address challenges for policy makers, funding agencies, NGOs and practitioners. EJDR has a particular interest in research addressing important issues that transcend the boundaries of single academic disciplines and development functions.

The European Journal of Development Research understands development to be a broadly defined concept. Although a majority of the papers published examine the challenges for developing countries, we recognize that human development is a continuous process, and that there are important lessons to be derived from the experiences of less-developed regions in the developed world.

Online Features:
- Complete online archive available back to 1989
- Advance online publication - definitive, citable version of papers (complete with DOI) available online ahead of print.

Aims and Scope:

Feminist Review is a peer-reviewed, interdisciplinary journal setting new agendas for the analysis of the social world. Currently based in London with an international scope, Feminist Review invites critical reflection on the relationship between materiality and representation, theory and practice, subjectivity and communities, contemporary and historical formations. The Feminist Review Collective is committed to exploring gender in its multiple forms and interrelationships. As well as academic articles we publish experimental pieces, visual and textual media and political interventions, including, for example, interviews, short stories, poems and photographic essays.

When Feminist Review first appeared in 1979 it described itself as a feminist journal, ‘a vehicle to unite research and theory with political practice, and contribute to the development of both’. Challenges of race, class and sexuality have been central to the development of the journal. More than thirty years later, Feminist Review remains committed to these core values.

Online Features:

Aims and Scope:
In recent times, the study of France has been changing. Globalization, Europeanization, and interdependence have meant that it is less easy to see developments in contemporary France in a purely national context. External factors have intruded on the French political system. In the academic context the trend towards large-scale collaboration in comparative projects has meant an increasing opportunity for bringing France into the mainstream of academic research. Long considered to be an exceptional case, recent scholarship in political science has tended to emphasize the points of comparison between France and other polities. In short, the context of French politics is changing and the study of French politics is changing. French Politics is designed to reflect these developments.

Aims and Scope:

Founded by The Geneva Association in 1973, this prestigious journal still leads its field, publishing papers which both improve the scientific knowledge of the insurance industry and stimulate constructive dialogue between the industry and its economic and social partners. This is a key strategic role for insurance in the modern economy.

Each issue of The Geneva Papers on Risk and Insurance – Issues and Practice is devoted to a relevant topic of contemporary interest. Major topics include: Bank Assurance, Financial Services (regulation and management), New Perspectives in the Welfare State, Developments in the Health Sector, Technological Issues, etc.

Published quarterly, this international journal is essential reading for academics and researchers in insurance and their colleagues in the insurance industry, as well as other professionals who are searching for a deeper insight into the strategic options for their sector. It bridges the gap between these two groups, highlighting converging zones of interest and helping them to find a common direction.

Online Features:

• Complete online archive available back to 1976.

• Advance online publication - definitive, citable version of papers (complete with DOI) available online ahead of print.

• The Geneva Papers on Risk and Insurance – Issues and Practice is abstracted/indexed in: ABI/INFORM and related Proquest services; Association of Business Schools’ (ABS) Academic Journal Quality Guide; Australian Business Deans Council (ABDC) Journal Quality List; Australian Research Council ERA Ranked Journals List; Current Contents Collections/Business Collection; Current Contents Collections/Social and Behavioural Sciences®; EconLit; SCOPUS; Social Sciences Citation Index®.

• The Geneva Papers on Risk and Insurance - Issues and Practice is included in Palgrave Open which offers authors of accepted papers the option to publish their articles with immediate open access upon publication. See page 55.
Aims and Scope:
The Geneva Risk and Insurance Review strives to publish high quality papers that advance our understanding of industry behavioural changes under uncertainty.

The journal direction is towards economics in general, focusing on risk and insurance in particular. Although most of the papers published are theoretical, The Geneva Risk and Insurance Review also publishes tests and competing theories in order to expand understanding of insurance economics.

Published twice a year, this international journal provides a forum for the exchange of academic findings and views on the technical aspects of risk and insurance economics, whilst also supporting and encouraging research. The journal aims to publish:

- Authoritative contributions regarding risk, insurance and related areas.
- Theoretical papers as well as empirical and/or experimental research for global dissemination.
- New innovative ideas in insurance economics.

Online Features:

- Complete online archive available back to 1976.
- Advance online publication - definitive, citable version of papers (complete with DOI) available online ahead of print.

Aims and Scope:

Health Systems is a multi-disciplinary journal promoting the idea that all aspects of health and healthcare delivery can be viewed from a systems perspective. The underpinning philosophy of the journal is that health and healthcare systems are characterized by complexity and interconnectedness, where “everything affects everything else.” Thus, problems in healthcare need to be viewed holistically as an integrated system of multiple components (people, organizations, technology and resources) and multiple perspectives. This creates a need for a journal to serve as a bridging factor. Health Systems provides a forum that brings the different disciplinary viewpoints and research approaches together in discussion.

Online Features:

- Complete online archive available from 2012.
- Advance online publication - definitive, citable version of papers (complete with DOI) available online ahead of print.
- A subscription to the related European Journal of Information Systems is included with a subscription to Health Systems. Health Systems is also available as a standalone journal.
- Health Systems is included in Palgrave Open which gives authors of accepted papers the option to publish their articles with immediate open access upon publication. See page 55.
Aims and Scope:

Higher Education Policy is an international journal for advancing scholarly understanding of the policy process applied to higher education through the publication of original analyses, both theoretical and practice-based, the focus of which may range from case studies of developments in individual institutions to policy making at systems and at national level.

Higher Education Policy has two distinguishing features:

- It encourages contributions that make explicit comparison between systems of higher education.
- It is theme based, involving a common focus or combining articles which individually contribute to an overall topic.

Through this journal the International Association of Universities (IAU) wishes to strengthen the exchange between scholarship and issues of practical administrative concern within the perspective of the disciplines that contribute to the study of this field - anthropology, history, economics, public administration, political science, government, law, sociology, philosophy, psychology, policy analysis and the sociology of organizations.

Online Features:

- Complete online archive available back to 1988.
- Higher Education Policy is indexed and/or abstracted in: ABI/INFORM; Australian Research Council ERA Ranked Journals List; CSA Sociological Abstracts; Educational Periodicals; Higher Education Digest; Infotrieve; International Bibliography of Periodical Literature on the Humanities and Social Sciences (IBZ); International Bibliography of Book Reviews of Scholarly Literature on the Humanities and Social Sciences (IBR); International Bibliography of the Social Sciences; OCLC; Science Direct Navigator Database; SCOPUS; SwetsWise; Worldwide Political Science Abstracts.

Aims and Scope:

IMF Economic Review is dedicated to publishing peer-reviewed, high-quality, context-related academic research on open-economy macroeconomics. It emphasizes rigorous analysis with an empirical orientation that is of interest to a broad audience, including academics and policymakers. Studies that borrow from, and interact with, other fields such as finance, international trade, political economy, labor, economic history or development are also welcome.

The views presented in published papers are those of the authors and should not be attributed to, or reported as, reflecting the position of the IMF, its Executive Board, or any other organization mentioned herein.

“To navigate the global crisis, and to take the best policy decisions, will require mobilizing and extending the knowledge we have about open economy macro, from the implications of liquidity traps, to the dangers of large fiscal deficits, to macro-financial interactions, to the contours of a better international monetary and financial system. My hope and my expectation is that the IMF Economic Review will be central to the effort.” - Olivier J. Blanchard, Economic Counsellor and Director, Research Department, IMF.

Online Features:

- Complete online archive available back to 1950.
- Advance online publication - definitive, citable version of papers (complete with DOI) available online ahead of print.
- A Site License to IMF Economic Review will allow access to prior volumes of IMF Staff Papers as a part of the rolling four-year archive. Archive content not included in the license agreement is available to purchase.

Aims and Scope:

Interest Groups & Advocacy engages broadly with the politics of interests. It records and analyzes how advocacy by groups, movements and lobbying professionals shapes policy, and it addresses important debates about how such interests are mobilized and maintained. It will cast a wide net across politics and society to identify the forces, strategies, and tactics that determine policy change. Open to diverse methodologies and seeking to address both scholars and practitioners, it welcomes studies that address theoretical issues, reports rigorous empirical work, and delivers insight on the range of change agents, and their behaviour and impact.

Online Features:

- Complete online archive available from 2012.
- Advance online publication - definitive, citable version of papers (complete with DOI) available online ahead of print.
- Interest Groups & Advocacy is included in Palgrave Open which offers authors of accepted papers the option to publish their articles with immediate open access upon publication. See page 55.
Aims and Scope:
Brought to you by Palgrave Macmillan and the International Federation of Operational Research Societies (IFORS), International Abstracts in Operations Research (IAOR) is the premiere literature search and discovery tool for research in Operational Research and the Management Sciences (OR/MS).

IAOR features a continually growing database of abstracts from the world’s high-caliber OR/MS journals, as well as supplemental and specialized journals whenever these are relevant to the philosophy, methodology, or practice of OR. This includes many journals which are seldom covered elsewhere, thus providing a comprehensive synopsis of current operations research literature.

Because the selection of material is made by people who are knowledgeable in the field, IAOR offers OR professionals, researchers and academics an unparalleled database of OR/MS literature that brilliantly complements the very broad results that come from other online search engines.

Release 2.0 incorporates a more powerful search engine, allowing users to perform complex Boolean searching and to save their searches.

Online Features:
• Online archive available back to 1989.
• A Site License provides access to all current and archive content during the supply period only.
• Search for and view abstracts.
• Find similar abstracts using IFORS’ classification system.
• Export references.
• Link to full text articles.

Aims and Scope:

International Politics Reviews seeks to be the premier source of refereed review articles and commentary in International Studies and IR; to maximize the usefulness and impact of each article by innovative use of print and online display and media; and to provide an unparalleled service to authors and readers.

International Politics Reviews publishes in-depth review articles which present authoritative and up-to-date surveys, synthesis and evaluation of the big questions and trends in the field concerning theory, world order and current debates. We seek not only to clarify major debates, but also to present new perspectives and insights, which in turn will help to shape the field in the future.

International Politics Reviews’ content is written by internationally renowned academics and researchers and targeted towards readers in international studies, IR, politics and the wider social sciences.

Review articles are designed to maximise the wider impact of the content. While intended to be read by academics and policymakers working in the fields above, we aim to make all our articles accessible to readers and teachers working in any social sciences discipline.

Aims and Scope:
The Journal of Direct, Data and Digital Marketing Practice provides an indispensable resource for senior marketing managers seeking awareness of new marketing concepts, strategies and applications from around the world. The journal is unique through primarily being written by practitioners, for practitioners, while retaining the rigour of an academic journal.

Central to the value readers gain from the journal is real-life insight provided into customer behaviours, multi-channel marketing strategies, marketing success stories and data-driven routes-to-market. These are delivered through a combination of opinion pieces, case studies, business intelligence, reviews and whitepapers which have been carefully assessed for the quality of their thinking and content by the editorial board. Since launching in 1998, the journal has consistently informed practicing marketers about the latest developments in channels, techniques and tools across the linked disciplines of direct marketing, data management and digital marketing.

Specifically the journal publishes:
• Papers describing models and theories that can be used in marketing practice.
• Applied quantitative and qualitative research.
• Descriptive pieces addressing the latest thinking, techniques and best practice.

Online Features:
• Complete online archive available back to 1999.
• Journal of Direct, Data and Digital Marketing Practice is indexed and/or abstracted in: ABI/INFORM and related ProQuest services; EBSCO; The Elmar moderated listserv; Gale; Infotrieve; OCLC; SCOPUS; SwetsWise.

Aims and Scope:
The Journal of Information Technology Teaching Cases (JITTC) is a sister journal of the Journal of Information Technology. It has the sole purpose of publishing case studies in a form designed for use in teaching. It has the same editors, editorial board and advisory board as the Journal of Information Technology. It applies the same standards, uses the same review process, and has the same high level of rigour and credibility as the Journal of Information Technology.

It is designed to be used by academics, scholars, advanced students and professional instructors who want real examples on which to base teaching on contemporary information and communications technology themes. Case topics will include, but not be restricted to technology and the management of IT, including strategy, business models, change, infrastructure, organization, human resources, sourcing, system development and implementation, communications, technology developments, technology impacts and outcomes, technology futures, national policies and standards.

All cases have a fully refereed Teaching Note. The Teaching Note is not published and is only available to bona fide teachers in higher and further education so as to ensure students do not have access.

Online Features:
• A Journal of Information Technology Teaching Cases site license is only available with a site license to Journal of Information Technology.
• Advance online publication - definitive, citable versions of papers (complete with DOI) available online ahead of print.
• Journal of Information Technology Teaching Cases is included in Palgrave Open which gives authors of accepted papers the option to publish their articles with immediate open access upon publication. See page 55.

Aims and Scope:

Journal of International Relations and Development is an independent and internationally peer-reviewed journal in international relations and international political economy. It publishes articles on contemporary world politics and the global political economy from a variety of methodologies and approaches.

The journal, whose history goes back to 1984, was originally established to encourage scholarly publications by authors coming from Central/Eastern Europe. In the late 1990s the journal was refounded as the official journal of the Central and East European International Studies Association (CEEISA), implementing a rigorous peer-review system and opening its pages to submissions from all scholars, regardless of regional affiliation. The Journal of International Relations and Development is a global journal with regional roots.

Aims and Scope:

Today's knowledge management research and practice is disseminated through a wide range of publications. The community is rapidly evolving. Knowledge Management Research & Practice provides a single focus – an outlet for high-quality, peer-reviewed articles on all aspects of managing knowledge, organizational learning, intellectual capital and knowledge economics. The journal has a particular emphasis on cross disciplinary approaches, and on the mixing of “hard” (e.g. technological) and “soft” (e.g. cultural or motivational) issues. This cross-disciplinary focus enables articles in the journal to address other important tensions in the field of knowledge management, such as those between strategy and operations, people and technology, short-term and long-term needs and the organization and the individual.

Aims and Scope:

Maritime Economics & Logistics (MEL) is a scholarly peer-reviewed publication for academics, practitioners and policy-makers that promotes maritime economics and logistics as a distinct and well-defined branch of both applied economics and international business. MEL is a key source for peer-reviewed research and policy perspectives of direct relevance to economists, researchers, academics and those in professional practice with an interest in maritime economics, maritime policy, transport economics and applied economics.

Research in maritime economics is changing, most noticeably from the ‘modal’ approach of the past to one focusing on the optimization of global supply networks. The mission of MEL is to map the forefront of this research and thus promote maritime economics and logistics as a distinct and well-defined branch of both applied economics and international business.

Online Features:

- Complete online archive available back to 1999.

Aims and Scope:

Palgrave Communications is an open access online-only journal dedicated to publishing high-quality original research and review papers. The scope of the journal reflects Palgrave Macmillan’s strengths in the humanities, the social sciences and business studies. In addition to its multidisciplinary position, the journal welcomes interdisciplinary research that fosters interaction, creativity and reflection between academic fields. The journal features guest-edited regular thematic collections dedicated to hot topics and niche areas of research.

We aspire to be the definitive peer-reviewed outlet for open access academic research in and between our subjects. Palgrave Communications is open to all theoretical and methodological perspectives.

Palgrave Communications is committed to providing an efficient service for both authors and readers. All articles are subject to double-blind peer review, overseen and carried out by Editorial Board Members and experts they recommend. Prompt dissemination of accepted papers to Palgrave Macmillan’s wide readership and beyond is achieved through a fully online peer-review system and a program of continuous online publication on a new journal publishing platform. Published manuscripts are enhanced by innovative web technologies, including an enhanced article template and article level metrics.

Online Features:

- No format limits: We have removed the restrictions of print to word limits, color and figure charges: all articles that conform to the required editorial standards of the journal will be published regardless of length or supplementary content.

- Improved HTML full-text article view: In addition to PDF availability, the layout and navigation of online articles in HTML allows for an improved incorporation and display of figures and tables, video, multimedia and supplementary information.

- Article level metrics: Using Altmetric, authors can see how their research is being used and commented on across the web and social networks.

- Visibility and impact: Immediate and open online access to all articles published. Studies have shown that open access articles are more frequently cited than comparable subscription articles.

- Mandate compliance and author copyright retention: Palgrave Communications offers authors Creative Commons licensing ensuring compliance with a variety of funding mandates, as well as enabling authors to retain copyright in their work.

Open Access:

Palgrave Communications is an open access online-only journal. As the costs of publication are not recouped through a subscription charge, and to enable articles to be freely available to all online immediately upon publication, authors of accepted papers or their funding agencies pay an article processing charge. See www.palgrave-journals.com/palcomms/about/openaccess for more information.
Palgrave Macmillan offers authors and their funders the option to publish open access research across all publication formats: journals, monographs, and Palgrave Pivots (mid form monographs) via Palgrave Open. We were one of the first publishers to offer an open access option for the humanities and social sciences, and remain an active participant in the development of sustainable models for open access for these disciplines.

Open access ensures the free, unrestricted and rapid communication of the results of scholarly research online.

Benefits for your researchers, faculty & students:

- Compliance with a range of international open access policies
- A professional and rigorous peer-review process
- Wide dissemination: open access publishing means that titles are available online, immediately and without restriction
- Increased usage: evidence supports the assertion that open access publications receive more downloads, clicks and greater usage, and may lead to more citations of scholarly work

Aims and Scope:

Place Branding and Public Diplomacy is a pioneering journal and the first to concentrate on this fast-growing field. Its scope and reach is global and culturally unbiased. Its primary objective is to broaden the understanding of the nature, purposes and benefits of both place branding and public diplomacy and to demonstrate how place branding and public diplomacy strategies are implemented in practice.

Place Branding and Public Diplomacy is a publication which is relevant to the needs of place branding practitioners, public diplomats, policy makers, and researchers. It was designed first and foremost as a review that would attract submissions and be read by both practitioners and researchers. It provides researchers as well as ministries, governments, civil servants, agencies, and consultants with the latest thinking and most valuable lessons on how places can better manage their images and extend their ‘soft power’ for economic, social and cultural development.

Online Features:

Aims and Scope:

A lively, accessible, and provocative journal for scholarship of the highest quality across the discipline. Since its launch in 1968, Polity's content has reflected the full variety of approaches inherent in the study of politics. As journals have become more specialized and less accessible to many within the discipline of political science, Polity has remained universal. The journal aims to publish papers that promise to be "productive," that will stimulate debate — where new questions are asked and conventional assumptions are reconsidered.

Online Features:

- Complete online archive available back to 1969.
- Advance online publication - definitive, citable version of papers (complete with DOI) available online ahead of print.

Aims and Scope:

postmedieval: a journal of medieval cultural studies is a cross-disciplinary, peer-reviewed journal in medieval studies that aims to bring the medieval and modern into productive critical relation. The journal works to develop a present-minded medieval studies in which contemporary events, issues, ideas, problems, objects, and texts serve as triggers for critical investigations of the Middle Ages. Further, postmedieval seeks to illuminate the deep historical structures - mental, linguistic, social, cultural, aesthetic, religious, political, sexual, and the like - that underlie contemporary thought and life, and therefore, also attends to the question of the relation of the medieval to the modern (and vice versa) in different times and places.

The journal demonstrates the important value of medieval studies and the longest possible historical perspectives to the ongoing development of contemporary critical and cultural theories that remain under-historicized and will advocate for and support the continuing development, from any and all disciplinary directions, of historicist, materialist, comparatist, and theoretical approaches to the subjects of the Middle Ages.

Nature Climate Change covers the science of contemporary climate change, its impacts, and wider implications for the economy, society and policy. As climate change is now as much a societal problem as a physical one, the journal publishes original research across the social sciences, as well as physical science research.

In addition to publishing original research, Nature Climate Change provides a forum for discussion among leading experts through the publication of opinion, analysis and review articles. It also highlights the most important developments in the field through Research Highlights and publishes original reporting from renowned science journalists in the form of feature articles.
