

Selection, introduction, conclusion and editorial matter

© Bridget Anderson and Isabel Shutes 2014

Individual chapters © Respective authors 2014

All rights reserved. No reproduction, copy or transmission of this publication may be made without written permission.

No portion of this publication may be reproduced, copied or transmitted save with written permission or in accordance with the provisions of the Copyright, Designs and Patents Act 1988, or under the terms of any licence permitting limited copying issued by the Copyright Licensing Agency, Saffron House, 6–10 Kirby Street, London EC1N 8TS.

Any person who does any unauthorized act in relation to this publication may be liable to criminal prosecution and civil claims for damages.

The authors have asserted their rights to be identified as the authors of this work in accordance with the Copyright, Designs and Patents Act 1988.

First published 2014 by PALGRAVE MACMILLAN

Palgrave Macmillan in the UK is an imprint of Macmillan Publishers Limited, registered in England, company number 785998, of Houndmills, Basingstoke, Hampshire RG21 6XS.

Palgrave Macmillan in the US is a division of St Martin's Press LLC, 175 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10010.

Palgrave Macmillan is the global academic imprint of the above companies and has companies and representatives throughout the world.

Palgrave® and Macmillan® are registered trademarks in the United States, the United Kingdom, Europe and other countries.

ISBN 978–1–137–31969–2

This book is printed on paper suitable for recycling and made from fully managed and sustained forest sources. Logging, pulping and manufacturing processes are expected to conform to the environmental regulations of the country of origin.

A catalogue record for this book is available from the British Library.

A catalog record for this book is available from the Library of Congress.

Typeset by MPS Limited, Chennai, India.

Contents

|  |      |
|--|------|
| List of Figures and Tables  | vii  |
| Acknowledgements  | viii |
| Notes on Contributors   | ix   |
| Introduction   | 1    |
| Isabel Shutes and Bridget Anderson  |      |
| Part I Theorizing Migrant Care Labour   |      |
| 1 Making Connections Across the TransnationalPolitical Economy of Care   | 11   |
| Fiona Williams  |      |
| 2 Nation Building: Domestic Labour and ImmigrationControls in the UK   | 31   |
| Bridget Anderson  |      |
| 3 Migrant Domestic Workers as ‘One of the Family’  | 49   |
| Rhacel Salazar Parreñas   |      |
| Part II The Institutional Contexts of Migrant Care Labour   |      |
| 4 Three Domains of Migrant Domestic Care Work:The Interplay of Care, Employment and MigrationPolicies in Austria | 67   |
| Gudrun Bauer, Bettina Haidinger and August Österle  |      |
| 5 A Right to Care? Immigration Controls andthe Care Labour of Non-Citizens   | 87   |
| Isabel Shutes   |      |
| 6 Resisting Crisis at What Cost? Migrant CareWorkers in Private Households   | 110  |
| Zyab Ibáñez and Margarita León  |      |
| 7 Supermaids: The Racial Brandingof Global Filipino Care Labour  | 130  |
| Anna Romina Guevarra  |      |
| 8 Transnational Households: Migrants and Care,at Home and Abroad   | 151  |
| Sarah van Walsum and Maybritt Jill Alpes  |      |

Part III Governance and Political Mobilization across Care, Work and Migration

|    |   |     |
|----|---|-----|
| 9  | Toward Flexibility with Security for Migrant Care Workers:A Comparative Analysis of Personal Home Care in Torontoand Los AngelesCynthia Cranford | 173 |
| 10 | The Global Governance of Domestic WorkGuy Mundlak and Hila Shamir  | 192 |
|    | ConclusionBridget Anderson and Isabel Shutes   | 213 |
|    | Index  | 225 |

Introduction

Isabel Shutes and Bridget Anderson

Across the world, the provision of care faces mounting challenges – what has been widely referred to as a ‘crisis of care’ (Hochschild, 1995; Zimmerman et al., 2006). In the global North, international migrants have increasingly supplemented the unpaid or low-paid care labour provided by non-migrant women – as domestic workers, nannies, care assistants and nurses – in the private sphere of the home and in publicly and privately funded care services. This volume brings together international scholars of migration and care to examine the global construction of migrant care labour and how it manifests itself in different contexts.<sup>1</sup> With a growing body of research developing over the past decade in this field, the aims of the volume are to make connections across theory, policy and politics with respect to care, work and migration; the inequalities of gender, race/ethnicity, class, nationality and immigration status that migrant care labour embodies; the inequalities between the global North and South, different regions and countries, countries of origin and destination in the migration process and the chains of care labour between them; the different institutional contexts of care labour that cut across the public and the private, encompassing different roles and relations between the state, market and family; and the different sites of political mobilization and governance that have developed with respect to migrant care labour.

Care has become a site of ‘crisis’, as discussed by Williams in the opening chapter, with the increasing participation of women in the public sphere of waged work, demographic shifts with regard to families and ageing populations, increasing international migration, the restructuring of welfare states and the marketization of care. All of these have implications for the social relations that care is shaped by and shapes. In this volume, different forms of care and care work are brought together as the focus of analysis. Much of the literature on migrant care work has focused on private households, where migrant domestic workers are employed in meeting the care needs of 'adult-worker' households (see Lutz, 2008). More recently, empirical research has looked at the employment of migrant workers by (largely private sector) residential and home care service providers, as nurses and care assistants (see Shutes and Walsh, 2012). At the same time, the familial/unpaid care labour of migrants has been the focus of analyses of transnational family relations, drawing attention to how migrant women and men care for family members 'from afar' and how care relations in families and communities in countries of origin are affected (see Parrenas, 2005). Williams (Chapter 1) argues that it is necessary to connect the different institutional contexts in which migrant care labour is located to understand the ways in which the crisis of care manifests itself at the micro, meso and macro levels. Such an approach connects care work in private households to care work in formal or institutional care services; care, migration and employment policies and their impact on care labour markets; state policies at the national and transnational level.

2 Migration and Care Labour

International migration, particularly of women, from the so-called global South to North, but also intra-regionally, between Central and Eastern European and Western European countries, and between countries in East and South East Asia, has been an integral part of the restructuring of care in different national contexts. In the context of Spain (see Chapter 6), with increasing migration since the 1990s and increasing demand for care, migrant women have constituted the primary source of labour in the expansion of care work in private households. However, to talk of migrant care workers requires us to think carefully about what we mean by 'migrant' and 'care work'. While professionalized care work such as nursing in an institutional context can be separated from the provision of clean sheets or food, in many instances it can be very difficult to separate 'care work' from non-care work. In the private household, caring can require clothes washing, shopping and cleaning and so on, as well as the physically intimate labour of care. In this volume, we have attempted to reflect a broad conception of care work and not narrowly confine it to a particular set of tasks or particular type of institution. As for 'migration', domestic labour – including the provision of care – has historically been associated with what would now be categorized as 'internal' migration, and rural-urban mobility continues to be an important source of household labour in countries across the world. We have limited our focus to an examination of the role of international migration in care provision. This allows an examination of the different ways in which care, migration and employment policies and migratory processes intersect in constructing different types of care workers.

Immigration controls have played a clear role in constituting a particular legal status for particular types of care workers, such as au pairs and domestic workers (see Chapters 2 and 3). But migrants have equally entered care work in countries of destination post migration. In the context of care for older people in the UK, the recruitment of migrant care workers involves asylum seekers, students and EU nationals, among others, who have entered jobs in a low-paid and 'easy to enter' sector of the labour market post migration (Chapter 5). In Austria, certain types of care work supported by care policies have been predominantly constituted by migrant labour (Chapter 4). At the same time, state policies in the global South, for example the Philippines, have actively promoted the 'export' of migrant labour as a high-value commodity in global care labour markets (as discussed by Guevarra in Chapter 7).

Understanding why it is that migrant care labour has become central to the provision of care in different contexts is thus a question of interrogating the social construction of 'migrants' and 'migrant care workers' through state policies across care, migration and employment (Williams, 2012) at the national and also transnational and international levels (Chapter 10), and through the relations between employers, care users and care workers. Who counts as a 'migrant' in quantitative and qualitative data reflects those processes (Anderson, 2013). Migrants may be defined in quantitative data sources by country of birth (foreign born), by nationality (foreign nationals/non-citizens) or by length of residence, but among any of those groups there is considerable diversity with regard to nationality and immigration status (the latter is often not identified by national datasets) and the rights and entitlements accorded to legal status, alongside divisions of race/ethnicity, gender and class. Moreover, as qualitative research conveys, who is defined as a 'migrant care worker' – by care users, their families, the managers of care homes – is inextricably linked with those wider social divisions, which likewise shape preferences for who provides care (Chapter 2; Shutes and Walsh, 2012).

The book is structured in three parts. Part I focuses on theoretical approaches to the analysis of migration and care labour. Part II, building on those approaches, provides empirical case studies of different institutional contexts of migrant care labour, drawing on research carried out in Europe, North America, Asia and Africa. Those contexts cross different types of care labour, in private households (for example, see Chapter 4; Chapter 6), residential and home care services (Chapter 5), and through the formation of transnational families (Chapter 8). They connect state policies in care, migration and employment (Chapters 4 and 6); different types of migrant care workers (Chapter 5; Chapter 7); countries of origin and destination of migrant workers (Chapters 7 and 8). Part III connects theory and policy to emerging forms of political mobilization at the local level (Chapter 9) and the international governance of migrant care labour (Chapter 10).

With a view to unpacking the social divisions of care labour today, as reflected in migrant care work, the first chapter by Williams considers a continuum of care work that extends from home-based domestic and care work to institution-based care – different forms and sites of migrant care work that the subsequent chapters in turn examine. Williams sets out an analytical framework that connects, at the macro level, the crisis of care to other manifestations of the global crises of contemporary capitalism, relating these macro dynamics to national and supranational state social policies and how they contribute to the care crisis and to the increase in migrant care labour. The chapter considers the implications of the analysis of migrant care labour for an understanding of global social justice with respect to migration and care.

Chapters 2 and 3 show how the gendered and racialized ideologies of work, family and nation underpin the legal and social construction of migrant care workers in the private sphere of the household. Chapter 2 by Anderson focuses on the ways in which immigration policies with respect to care work do not simply serve a market function in meeting demand for care in private households by supplying migrant workers. Through the construction of particular types of migrant care workers – Anderson examines the historical development of the legal status of au pairs and domestic workers in the UK – immigration policies contend with and reproduce ideas about the nation, family and work. As Anderson conveys, the construction of these categories of migrant care workers reveals much about the tensions between waged work and unwaged care. Chapter 3 by Parreñas, which examines the legal status of domestic workers cross-nationally, considers the ways in which the ‘partial citizenship’ of these workers results from the simultaneous marketization and familialization of domestic work. While states are implicated in the marketization of care in private households by establishing the legal status of migrant domestic workers, at the same time the lack of employment rights accorded to domestic workers positions them as ‘one of the family’, dependent on the family as employer. State policies towards the paid care work of migrants, as these chapters argue, thus need to be linked analytically to the unpaid care labour of women in the private sphere of the home.

In Part II, Chapters 4 to 8 provide empirical case studies of different institutional contexts in which migrant care labour is located. Chapter 4 by Bauer, Haidinger and Österle examines the different regulatory contexts of migrant care work in private households, focusing on Austria. By comparing different types of home-based care work (domestic work, childcare and care for older people), it considers how the regulation of care, employment and migration impacts on migrant labour in these care settings. Paradoxically, the chapter indicates that attempts to strengthen the private household as an employer of care labour through regulation have resulted in regulated yet still precarious care work in private households. Chapter 5 by Shutes, in turn, compares different types of migrant care workers in care for older people, employed in private residential and home care services, and in private households. Drawing on the findings of interviews with migrant care workers of different nationalities and immigration statuses, the chapter examines how immigration controls shape the divisions of care labour between citizens and non-citizens, but also between different categories of non-citizens. As the chapter indicates, the organization of care, and the social divisions that it embodies, poses both theoretical and political opportunities for making connections between citizens and non-citizens with respect to the social rights of care workers and those in need of care.

Chapter 6 by Ibáñez and León examines the connections between the economic crisis and the crisis of care (to which the chapter by Williams refers) in the context of Spain. Here, attempts to address the care crisis have resulted in the expansion of the direct employment of care workers in private households, overwhelmingly migrant women. While the impact of the economic crisis on other sectors of the labour market in Spain has brought about increasing levels of unemployment for citizen workers and male non-citizen workers, migrant women working in private households have not been so affected by unemployment. Recent reforms have improved the rights of care workers in the private, informal sphere of the household, yet, as the chapter argues, home-based care work continues to be difficult to regulate.

Chapters 7 and 8 shift the focus to the countries of origin of migrant labour, emphasizing the importance of a transnational perspective to an understanding of the relationship between care and migration. In connection with the focus of Part I on the racialized ideologies of work and nation (Chapter 2), Chapter 7 by Guevarra examines the ways in which the state and private recruitment agencies in the Philippines engage in the 'racial branding' of Filipinos as the ideal global care labour. Dynamics of race and gender, Guevarra argues, are central to the ways in which migrant workers in this context are marketed as domestic workers, nurses and care assistants for 'export'. As Guevarra conveys, these practices, while forming a strategy for promoting the competitive advantage of Filipino labour and of the Philippines in the global economy, at the same time reinforce divisions between Filipino and other non-citizen workers in the global care market. Chapter 8 by van Walsum and Alpes draws attention to the connections between migrant care work in the global North and familial care in the global South. Drawing on research with migrant domestic workers in the Netherlands and with the families of workers in their countries of origin – Ghana and the Philippines – they explore migrants' cross-border arrangements of care for family members in their countries of origin as well as their own care needs upon retirement.

6 Migration and Care Labour

The employment of migrant workers in care-related work has entailed new forms of political mobilization with respect to the inequalities that this labour entails. Part III considers the different contexts in which claims-making regarding the rights of migrant care workers is taking place, and the potential of these processes with respect to issues of social justice at the local and international levels. In Chapter 9, Cranfield considers the ways in which claims-making for flexible care in meeting the care needs of care users is connected with insecurity for migrant care workers in terms of low wages and poor employment conditions. Drawing on two case studies of home care service provision in Los Angeles (USA) and Toronto (Canada), the chapter examines how, by building alliances between care users and care workers, trade unions at the local level have sought to challenge insecurity while still supporting flexibility in the provision of care. Chapter 10 by Mundlak and Shamir, focusing on the emerging governance of migrant care labour, examines the development of an international legal framework on domestic work. The chapter considers the potential for the international arena to counter state-level interests to contain the private and public costs of domestic work at the expense of migrant domestic workers themselves, and thereby the potential of international governance with respect to the rights of migrant workers.

Drawing on the previous chapters, the concluding chapter maps out some of the connections that we think merit further exploration, connections across and within theory, policy and politics. Central to the analysis of care, and the gender relations that underpin the provision of care, is an understanding of the relationship between productive and reproductive labour, between waged work and unwaged care, and between public and private responsibilities for care. We return to those dynamics and the ways in which they remain central to understanding why it is that migrant workers are integral to the provision of care across different countries, and the conditions under which migrant care labour is provided. Research on care and migration, as the analysis in this volume conveys, must make connections, between the multiple sites of care, between paid and unpaid care, between different types of care labour, but also between different academic disciplines and between theory, policy and politics.

Notes

1. The book was initiated through an international conference 'Making Connections: Migration, Gender and Care Labour in Transnational Context' (2011), organized by the Centre on Migration, Policy and Society at the University of Oxford and the Centre for International Research on Care, Labour and Equalities at the University of Leeds, in which the contributors to this volume participated.

Bibliography

- Anderson, B. (2013) Us and Them? The Dangerous Politics of Immigration Control (Oxford: Oxford University Press).
- Hochschild, A. (1995) 'The Culture of Politics: Traditional, Postmodern, Cold-Modern, and Warm-Modern Ideals of Care', Social Politics, 2, 3, 331–346.
- Lutz, H. (ed.) (2008) Migration and Domestic Work: A European Perspective on a Global Theme (Aldershot: Ashgate).
- Parreñas, R. (2005) Children of Global Migration: Transnational Families and Gendered Woes (Stanford: Stanford University Press).
- Shutes, I. and Walsh, K. (2012) 'Negotiating User Preferences, Discrimination, and Demand for Migrant Labour in Long-Term Care', Social Politics, 19, 1, 78–104.
- Williams, F. (2012) 'Converging Variations in Migrant Care Work in Europe', Journal of European Social Policy, 22, 4, 363–376.
- Zimmerman, M., Litt, J. and Bose, C. (2006) Global Dimensions of Gender and Carework (Stanford: Stanford University Press).

Index

A

- Act on Domestic Helpers and Workers (BGBI 1962/235), 79
- African Union's Charter on Human and People's Rights, 202
- Allied Workers Union of Tanzania (CHODAWU), 206
- Aquino, Benigno, III, 144
- Aquino, Corazon, 137
- Arroyo, Gloria Macapagal, 130, 131, 135
- au pair visas, 32, 38–42, see also visas
  - abolition of, 42
  - Denmark and, 59–61
  - Immigration Directorate's Instructions on, 40
  - importance of, for socialist democratic nations, 60–1
  - stipulations in the UK, 39
  - temporariness condition, 41
  - UK immigration regulations regarding, 39–40
- au pairs, 3–4, 19–20, 32, 34, 38–45, 49–52, 54–5, 57–61, 73–5, 79–81, 83, 156, 162, 220
- Austria
  - care allowance scheme, 75
  - care policies, migrant care labour and, 3
  - care workers shortages, strategies for, 78–9
  - childcare facilities, 74–5
  - domestic work in, 76–7
  - employment regime, 77–80
  - female oriented welfare state model, 74
  - long-term care, older people, 75–6
  - long-term care in, 73–4, 75, 81
  - marginal employment in, 76
  - migration regime, 80–2
  - welfare regime, 74–7
- Austrian Employment Service, 78
- Austrian Public Employment Service (PES), 80

B

- badanti*, 18
- bagong bayani (overseas Filipino workers), 137–43
- Bagong Bayani Award (BBA), 138–9
- Beijing Women's Conference (1995), 194
- Brown, Gordon, 37
- Buñol, Mary Joy, 130

C

- Canadian Auto Workers (CAW), 174, 186
- Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE), 186
- Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE, Local 6434), 174
- Caplan Report, 185
- CARAM Asia, 205
- care regimes, 68–74
  - concept of, 68
  - employment and, 70–1
  - feature of, in European countries, 67
  - identification of, 69
  - state intervention and, 69
  - types of, 69–70
  - types of care providers and, 69
- care services, 91
  - commodification of, 16
  - contracting out of, 19, 71
  - day, 92
  - institutionalized, 71, 83
  - long-term, see long-term care
  - marketization of, 4, 13, 26, 74, 77, 87, 133
  - paid, 91
  - private-for-profit sector and, 16
  - private residential and home, 5, 18, 87, 91, 92, 102
  - professionalized, 2
  - public provision of, 111
  - regimes, 68–74

- care services – continued
 regularization of, 25
 services, remuneration for, 91
 social, 75
 work, conditions of, 102–5 work, mobility within, 101–2
 work domains, 69
- care work, see also care
 characteristics of, 176
 employment conditions in Spain
 for, 112
 expansion and regulation in private households, 119–24
 flexibility and security in racialized and gendered, 175–7
 live-in, 221
 low-waged, 214
 making connections between other forms of waged labour and, 215–19
 making connections between paid and unpaid, 213–15
 migration and, 219–22
 physical characteristics of, 217 in private households, 110–24
 public sector, 176
 service sector work and, 217
- childcare
 in Austria, 74–5
 domains of, 69
 domestic, 79
 institutionalized, 75
 interventionist approach to, 70
 migration and, 158–61
 public sector role in, 73
 in Sweden, 74–5
 types of workers for, 36
 workers in the UK, private employment, 36
- child fostering arrangements, in Ghana, 159–61
- children, see also childcare
 as domestic workers, 206
 Dutch family migration policies
 and, 159
 fostering arrangements in Ghana
 for, 159–61
 migration and care for, 158–61
- citizenship divisions of, 91
 of domestic workers, limiting, 58 migrants' rights of, 25
 partial, see partial citizenship policies and immigration, 32
 social, 87
- Commission of Filipinos Overseas
 (CFO), 136
- Committee on Migrant Workers, 200
 General Recommendations and Comments issued by, 200
- Community Care Access Centres
 (CCACs), 174, 178, 179
- community unionism (CU), 189
- competitive bidding, 185
- Convention 189 Concerning Decent Work for Domestic Workers*
 (ILO DW Convention), 195, 200
- Convention on Decent Work for Domestic Workers (ILO), 121
- Convention on Home Work (ILO), 196
- 'cost disease,' 192–3
- crisis of care
 defined, 1
 economic crisis in Spain and, 5
 global, 27
 global capitalism crises and, 4 migrant care labour and, 2
 in wealthier states, 166
- D
- dakilang manggagawa* (extraordinary workers), 131
- DAMAYAN, 56
- Declaration on Fundamental Principles and Rights at Work
 (ILO), 196
- Denmark
 au pair programmes in, 59–61
 guest workers contract renewal, restrictions on, 57, 58
 naturalization of guest workers, 57–8
- Direct Funding programme, 178
- discrimination practices, migrant care labour, 20

- domestic work
  - in Austria, 76–7
  - characteristics of, 192
  - commodification of, 19
  - commodified, 192–3
  - crisis of trade unionism and regulation of, 194
  - emerging global governance of, 195–201
  - feminization of labour export in Philippines and, 135
  - international feminist activism and, 194
  - international norm on, 195
  - low-waged, 204
  - marketization and familialization of, 53
  - micropolitics of, 51
  - professionalization of, in Philippines, 144
  - regularization of, 25, 75–6, 85
  - regulating, 192–5
  - social reproduction and, 68–9
  - technological innovation and productivity in, 193
  - through service cheques in EU, 81
  - types of, 35
  - UN Committee on the Elimination of Racial Discrimination (CERD) and, 196
  - visas available for, in the UK, 38
  - vulnerabilities of, 202
  - as women’s responsibility, 192
- domestic workers
  - au pair visa, 38–42
  - child, 206
  - citizenship of, 58
  - collective bargaining and, 204
  - de-centering the international norm for, 201–6
  - demand for migrant, in the UK, 32
  - deregulation of, in Austria, 79
  - as fictive kin, 37
  - hostility against, 33
  - and immigration policy in the UK, 37–8
  - International Labour Organization and, 24
  - international norms applicable to, 196–8
  - legal status of migrant, in the UK, 4
  - low-skilled, 145
  - non-migrant, 198
  - paid, in the UK, 35–7
  - partial citizenship of, 53–5
  - in private households, problems of, 36–7
  - quotas and amnesties in Italy, 18
  - quotas and amnesties in Spain, 18
  - racialization of, 34
  - relationship between, and employers, 32–5
  - reproductive rights of, 58
  - role of public sector and, 73
  - semi-compliance status of, 72
  - social protection for, 121, 123
  - tax breaks in Sweden for, 19
  - technically trained, 143
  - trade unions and, 205
  - unequal division of labour, 52
  - unionized, 193
  - upgradation of, 144
  - visa holders, in the UK, 42–6
  - vulnerabilities of, 196, 199
- E
  - ecology, crisis of, 13
  - economic crisis, see also global capital crisis
    - household sector and, 112–16
    - migrant labour and, 112–16
  - education
    - grassroots, 174, 189
    - higher, 145
    - pre-school and school-based, 115
    - secondary, 160
  - elderly/older people
    - care for, 158, 163
    - care services for, 91
    - contracting out care services in Nordic countries, 19
    - in Ghana, 157–8
    - long-term care for, 67, 68, 69, 71, 73, 75, 78, 82
    - migration and care for, 156–8
    - state provisions for, 162

- employment
- for Filipinos in the Middle East, 135
  - in household sector in Spain in 2013, 110
  - mass destruction of, 111
  - security, see employment security
- employment security
- flexibility and, 173–4
  - labour market unionism (LMU) and, 177, 187
  - unionism and, 174
- Encuesta de Población Activa – EPA*, 114
- England
- adult social care workforce in, 92
  - older people care, migrant workers for, 96
  - paid care services in, 91
- Estatuto de los Trabajadores* (Workers' Bill of Rights), 121
- EU Enlargement, 41, 90
- Europe
- care policies in, 15
  - demand for migrant care labour in, 17
  - migrant women in care work, 15
  - overqualified migrant care labour, employment of, 16
- European Commission, 24, 121
- European Convention on Human Rights, 202
- European Court of Human Rights (ECHR), 202
- European Economic Area (EEA), 80, 90, 92–4, 102, 103
- quota, exemptions from, 81
- European Social Charter, 121
- European Union (EU), 162, 202
- domestic work through service cheques, 81
  - human capital, investments in, 15
  - intra, migration, 80
  - migrant care workers employment, factors responsible for, 16
  - migration within, 67, 80
  - semi-compliance arrangements in, 73
- extended cross border networks, as counterpoints to nuclear families, 163–6
- F
- Fair Labour Standards Act, 57
- faith-based communities, 163
- familialistic care regimes, 70
- family/families
- allowances for care within, 118
  - care for elderly and, 158
  - cash allowances in Spain for, 111
  - contested architecture of modernity and, 153–6
  - cross border, 153
  - Dutch family migration policies, 159
  - extended cross border networks as counterpoints to nuclear, 163–6
  - maternal, 157
  - middle-class, 204
  - nuclear, see nuclear families
  - requirements for reunification of, in Spain, 116
- Federal Canada Health Act, 178
- fictive kin
- au pair visas and, 39
  - domestic workers as, 37
- flexibility
- employment security and, 173–4
  - for migrant women, 173
  - need-based demand for, 175–6
  - numerical, 176
  - organizing for, in Los Angeles, 180–2
  - in racialized and gendered care work, 175–7
  - in Toronto, 182–7
- flexible work organization, 173
- Foreign Residents Law, 116
- formalization, care work, 72
- Fraser, Nancy, 12, 13, 22, 27, 215
- Fund to Support the Reception and Social Integration of Migrants (Spain), 116
- G
- GEFONT (Nepalese trade union), 205
- gender, see also women
- household labour demand in the UK and, 33–4
  - labour market segmentation in Europe and, 81–2
  - unequal divisions of labour, 52

- gendered violence, 194
- General Comment on Migrant Workers (UN), 196
- General Recommendation on Discrimination Against Non-Citizens (2002), 196
- General Recommendation on Women Migrant Workers (2008), 196
- Ghana
- care for elderly people in, 157–8, 163
  - child fostering arrangements in, 159–61
  - cross-border families in, 153
- global capital crisis, see also economic crisis
- crisis of care and, 4
  - social expenditure and, 13
  - social reproduction crisis and, 12–15
- global nursing care chains, 20
- guest workers, 54–5
- contract renewal, in United Arab Emirates, 57–8
  - contract renewal limitations, in Denmark, 57, 58
  - partial citizenship for, 55
  - permanent residency, 58–9
  - temporary, 59–61
  - transitional, 55, 56–7
  - visa regimes, 193
- H
- health care services, see also care services
- Ontario Health Coalition and privatization of, 185
  - private, 164
- high-killed labour, migrant care
- labour categorized as, 37
- Home Care Model, 178, 179
- Home Care Operators, 186
- Home Care Programme, 174
- households
- economic crisis, migrant labour and, 112–16
  - expansion and regulation of care work in private, 119–24
  - migrant care workers in private, 110–24
  - migrant women working in private, 111
  - paid domestic and care-related work in, 192–5
  - rights to privacy of, 112
  - transnational, 151–67
- human rights
- Beijing Women's Conference (1995) and, 194
  - conventions, 197
  - fundamental, 196
  - organizations, 205
  - working conditions as, 202
- I
- ILO Convention 189, 111
- immigration controls/policies
- care labour markets and, 91–7
  - care services and, 88
  - importance of, 31
  - labour markets, impact of, 220–1
  - labour markets and, 89–90
  - migrant workers ability to exercise rights and, 89
  - migrant workers mobility and, 89
  - non-citizens and, 89
  - of UK, domestic labour and, 37–8
- Independent Living Centers (ILCs), 180
- Independent Living model, 178, 188
- individualized care work, 71, 78
- individualized funding, 176, 178, 186, 188
- industrial union strategies, 175
- in-home household services, 192
- In-Home Supportive Services (IHSS), 175, 177, 178
- institutionalized care work, 71
- Inter-American Committee of Human Rights, 202
- International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, 197
- International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, 197
- International Domestic Workers' Network (IDWN), 205
- international feminist activism, 194
- International Labour Organization (ILO), 24, 135, 196, 197, 199

- International Monetary Fund (IMF), 135, 166
- International Programme on the Elimination of Child Labour (ILO-IPEC), 204
- International Trade Union Confederation, 24
- interventionist and universalist care regimes, 69
- Italy
badanti, 18
 immigration policies, 18
 migrant care labour in, percentage of, 16–17
 migration regimes, 18
- J
- Japan
 migrant care labour, for older people, 17
 migration regimes, 18–19
- K
- kafala programme, 58–9
- kafeel, 59
- Kalayaan*, 24, 43
- L
- Labour Certification Programme, 56
- Labour Code (Philippines), 135
- Labour Force Household Survey (EPA), 114, 123
- labour market
 deregulated, 221
 dualized nature of the Spanish, 119 gendered and racialized, 220 impact of migration on, 220 insecurity of care workers in, 176
 personal home care, 187
 Philippine Overseas Employment Administration (POEA) and, 135 primary, 193
 rise in women's, 117
- labour market unionism (LMU), 174, 177, 178, 181, 185, 187–8, see also occupational unionism
- Ley de Dependencia* (Law on Dependency), 112, 117
- Live-In Caregiver labour programme, 177
- Live-In Caregivers Programme, 56, 179
- long-term care
 in Austria, 73–4, 75, 81
 care crisis in Spain and, 116–19 community, 78
 demand for, 111
 financing of, 123
 institutionalized, 79
Ley de Dependencia and, 117 normative framework for, 117
 for older people, 67, 68, 69, 71, 73, 75, 78, 82 policies, 74, 75
 in private sector, 75, 81
 public and private investment in, 118
 public expenditure cuts in Spain and, 111 public intervention in the field of, 117
 regularization in, 76, 81
 restructuring of, 176
- Long Term Care Local 6434, 178
- low-skilled labour
 immigration controls and, 38, 78
 migrant care labour categorized as, 37
 Spanish national as, 115
- M
- Manila Bulletin*, 130
- Marcos, Ferdinand, 135
- marginal employment, see also employment
 in Austria, 76
 insurance provided under, 76
 service cheques, 79
- migrant care labour, see also migrants and care work, 219–22 categories of, 4
 categorized as high and low skilled, 37 conditions of care work, 102–5 conditions of employment for, 174 countries of origin of, 5
 data and methods, 97–8
 demand in Europe, 17
 emerging governance of, 6
 employment conditions for, 173–4

- employment regime for, in Austria, 77–80
- factors responsible for employment of, 16, 20
- flexible care and, 6
- gender and racial discrimination, 20
- immigration controls and, 3, 88, 91–7
- informal, 118
- international, 222–3
- legal construction of, 4
- mobility within care work, 101–2
- nurses, 20
- occupations, evident, 95
- organizations working for ethical recruitment of, 24
- partial citizenship of, 4
- in private households, 110–24
- racial branding in Philippines, 6
- racialization of, 134
- reasons for entering care work, 99–100
- recruitment of, in UK for older people, 3
- in residential care, 94
- rights of, 6
- social construction of, 4
- state, experiences of, 20
- toward flexibility with security for, 187–9
- types of, for older people, 5
- working conditions, strategies for improving, 25–6
- migrant care workers, see migrant care labour
- migrants, see also migrant care labour
- African Americans, 179
- and care, 151–67
- and care for older people, 156–8
- care needs or social risks of, 152
- cheap labour and, 221
- CMW and, 198, 200
- cross-border family arrangements of, 165–6
- defined, 3
- documented, 193
- economic situation of, in Spain, 116
- effects of globalization on, 14
- ideals about family norms of, 152
- investment made into housing projects by, 154–5
- irregular, 136
- labour market unionism and, 187
- Latino, 180
- local racialized workers and, 221
- male low-skilled, 115
- perspectives upon retirement, 161–3
- provisional, 54
- racialization of, 133–5
- racially motivated violence in U.S. against Filipino, 133
- rural-urban, 192
- skilled, 179
- temporary, 204
- toward flexibility with security for, 187–9
- undocumented, 161–2, 193
- white, 179
- white Canadian-born, 179
- women, 192
- migrant women, see also migrants in home-based domestic and care work, in Europe, 15
- household sector and, 115
- as primary source of care labour, 2, 5
- semi-compliance and, 72–3
- transfer of caretaking link and, 15
- Migrant Workers and Overseas Filipinos Act of 1995, 136
- Migrant Workers Day, 137
- migration regimes
- in Austria, 80–2
- in Italy, 18
- in Japan, 18–19
- in South Korea, 18–19
- in Spain, 18
- in UK, 18
- moral dimension (economy of care), 21–5
- N
- National Labour Relations Act, 57
- nation branding, 131, 132–5
- as an ‘agent of neoliberalism,’ 133
- as a commercial practice, 132–5

- non-citizen workers
 as adult social care workforce, 92
 au pair visa for, 42
 differential rights of, 101–102
 economic crisis in Spain and, 5
 immigration controls and, 89
 labour mobility of, 89
 legal status of, 88
 as paid workers, 50
 working conditions for, 88
- non-commodified care work, 72
- non-profit registries, 187
- Nordic countries
 commmodification of domestic work
 in, 19
 migrant care labour, increase in, 19 older people, contracting out care services for, 19
- not-for-profit care sector
 childcare, 18
 increasing reliance of states, 16 migrant labour, dependence on,
 16, 20
- nuclear families
 consumer market and, 164
 extended cross border networks as counterpoints to, 163–6
 gendered, 163–4
 migration projects, goal of, and, 153
 networked families and, 152 reproduction of wage labour and, 164
- O
- Occupational Safety and Health Act, 57
- occupational unionism, 177, see also labour market unionism (LMU)
- Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights at the United Nations, 197
- one of the family structure (domestic workers), 49–62
 conditional residency of, 55
 legal status of, 51
 problems, for domestic workers, 52
- Ontario Federation of Labour (OFL), 186
- Ontario Health Coalition, 185
- Ontario Personal Support Worker
 Registry, 186
- P
- partial citizenship of domestic workers, 53–5
 of guest workers, 54
- 'People Power' movement, 139
- Personal Assistance Services Council
 (PASC), 175, 178, 180–1, 188
- personal home care, 173
 comparative analysis of, in Toronto and Los Angeles, 173–89
 labour market, 187
- personal support, see personal home
 care
- Personal Support Workers (PSWs), 178, 179, 186
- Philippine Department of Tourism, 131
- Philippine National Statistics
 Organization, 136
- Philippine Overseas Employment
 Administration (POEA), 135
- Philippines
 care for elderly people in, 163
 care labour, racial branding of, 6 economy, care labour and, 3 fostering in, 161, 163
 overseas workers' dollar remittances
 in 2010, 136
 political-economic landscape of labour export economy of, 135–6
 sex industry in, 142
- Points Based System (UK immigration policy), 37, 45
- Polanyi, Karl, 12
- political dimension (economy of care), 21–5
- private-for-profit care sector, 16
 older people and, 91
 vs. public sector, 16
 working conditions in, 78
- private households, see also
 households
 expansion and regulation of care work in, 119–24
 migrant care workers in, 110–24
 migrant care work in, 71
 migrant women working in, 111
 one of the family, legal status of,
 and, 51–2

- problems of domestic workers in, 36–7
- providers of care work in, 71
- regularization in, 83
- self-employment option for
  - long-term care, 77–8
- privatized arrangements care regimes, 70
- Programme for the Early Payment of Unemployment Benefits to Foreigners (APRE), 116
- Protocol to Prevent, Suppress and Punish Trafficking in Persons, Especially Women and Children (TP), 196
- PSOE, 117
- public sector
  - advantages for domestic workers in, 72
  - austerity measures in, 72
  - childcare and, 73
  - vs. private-for-profit care sector, 16
  - vs. private sector, 72
  - role of, in employment of domestic worker, 73
- Public Services International, 24
- R
- racial branding, 131, 132–5
- racialized insecurity, 173–4, 176, 181, 187
  - challenging, 181–2
  - in Toronto, 182–7
- Red Cross, 185, 186
- regimes
  - Austrian welfare, 74–7
  - care, 68–74
  - defined, 17
  - employment, for Austrian migrant care labour, 77–80
  - importance of, 17
  - migration, see migration regimes
  - migration–care work relationship and, 18
- regularization, 82–4
  - of domestic work, 25, 75–6, 85
  - in long-term care, 76, 81
  - in private household, 83
- reproductive labour
  - as fictitious commodity, 13
  - gender and, 14
  - international division of, 14
  - productive labour and, 6–7
  - racial division of, 14
- RESPECT, 24, 205
- retirement, migrants' perspectives upon, 161–3
- S
- security
  - for migrant care workers, 187–9
  - organizing for, in Los Angeles, 180–2
  - in racialized and gendered care work, 175–7
- semi-compliance
  - defined, 72
  - status of domestic workers, 72
  - women migrants and, 72–3
- Service Employees International Union (SEIU), 174, 178, 181
- shadow mothers, 52
- social dimension (economy of care), 21–5
- social investment, 15, 23
- social movement unionism (SMU), see also labour market unionism (LMU)
  - LMU and, 177, 185
- social reproduction
  - commodification of, 13
  - crisis, care workers and, 12–15
  - domestic work and, 68–9
  - global capital crisis and, 12–15
  - social rights, 111, 115, 121, 123, 124
- Social Security Regime of Household Employees (SRHE), 111, 121
  - reform of, 121
- Social Security Registry, 119
- South Korea
  - migrant care labour, for older people, 17
  - migration regimes, 18–19
- Spain
  - cash allowances for family care in, 111
  - cash allowances for non-professional care in, 111

Spain – continued

- economic crisis, migrant labour and the household sector in, 112–16
- economic situation of migrants in, 116
- expansion and regulation of care work in private households in, 119–24
- household employees (thousands and percentages) during 1996–2011 in, 120t
- immigration policies, 18
- mass migration to, 114–15
- migrant care labour in, percentage of, 16
- migration regimes, 18
- paid domestic work in, 119–20
- responses to the care crisis in, 116–19
- 2011 reform's impact on registered domestic employment in, 121–4
- unemployment in, 115–16
- unemployment rates (percentages) 2007–012 by gender and nationality in, 113t
- welfare state expenditure in, 116–17
- Spanish Labour Force Survey (EPA), 119
- Spanish Labour Force Survey (INE), 119
- Special Regime for Domestic Workers, 121
- Special Social Security Regime of Household Employees (SRHE), 120
- stalled gender revolution, 53
- state intervention (care regimes), 69
- subsidiary principle care regimes, 69–70
- supermaids (Filipino migrant workers), 143–4
- Supermaid Training Programme, 144, 145
- Sweden
  - childcare in, 74–5
  - domestic work within, 81
  - encouraging employment of domestic workers, 19
  - foreign-born workers in health services in, 20

T

- Technical Education and Skills Development Authority (TESDA), 144
- temporariness, in au pair visa, 41
- tender loving care (TLC), 141, 142
- TESDA-accredited training centres, 144
- trade unions
  - domestic workers and, 193–4, 204
  - GEFONT, 205
  - international alliances among, 205
- Trafficking Protocol, 200
- transfer of caretaking, 15
- transnational dimension (economy of care), 21–5
  - Philippines example, 15, 21–2
  - transnational dynamics of care commitments, 22–3
  - transnational movement of care capital, 23
  - transnational movement of care labour, 22
- transnational households, 151–67

U

- UN Committee on Drugs and Crimes, 196
- UN Committee on Migrant Workers and their Families, 196
- UN Committee on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination Against Women (CEDAW), 196
  - General Recommendations and Comments issued by, 200
  - intersectionality of migration and gender and, 199
- UN Committee on the Elimination of Racial Discrimination (CERD), 196
  - ethnic and racial subordination and discrimination and, 199
  - General Recommendations and Comments issued by, 200
- UNESCO, 197
- United Arab Emirates
  - guest workers contracts, renewal of, 57–8
  - guest workers family reunification, 58
  - kafala programme, 58–9

- naturalization of guest workers, 57–8
 permanent residency, guest workers and, 58–9
- United Kingdom (UK)
 au pair visas, 38–42
 deregulated employment regime in, 78
 domestic workers in, 32–5
 domestic workers with visas, 42–6 immigration policy, domestic workers in, 37–8 migration policies, 18
 non-UK nationals, as adult social care workforce, 92 non-UK nationals, employment status of, 96–7 non-UK nationals, in private sector, 94 paid domestic workers in, 35–7
- United States
 Labour Certification Programme, 56 transitional guest workers in, 56–7 unpaid work, 87
- US Trafficking Victims Protection Act of 2000 (TVPA), 200
- V
- Visas, see also au pair visas
 au pair, see also au pair visas domestic workers with, in the UK, 42–6
- W
- Women, see also gender as ‘comfort women,’ 142
 domesticity, ideology of, 52
 domestic labour, association of, 34 domestic work regulation and, 192 fundamental equality of men and, 136
 as ‘guest relations officers,’ 142
 as ‘hospitality girls,’ 142
 household sector employment in Spain and, 110–11 migrant, see migrant women minority ethnic, globalized production processes and, 14 nation-building, role in, 136
 as ‘supermaids,’ 130
- Women in Development Foundation (WIDF) and, 141
- Women in Development Foundation (WIDF), 141
- Woolf, Virginia, 11
 worker-controlled registries, 188
- World Bank, 15, 135
- Y
- Youth Temporary Mobility Scheme, 42

